

GENERAL INTERNATIONAL MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING

BETWEEN

BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA
on behalf of the UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA-LINCOLN
LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, U.S.A.

AND

YOGYAKARTA STATE UNIVERSITY
YOGYAKARTA, INDONESIA

This Memorandum of Understanding between the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) and the Yogyakarta State University (YSU) is intended to facilitate academic collaboration between the partner institutions. The linkage hereby formed shall further each partner institution's objectives as well as strengthen the mutual relationship between the partners.

I. Institution Overview

UNL is a comprehensive public land-grant university, ranked as a Carnegie Research I institution. It offers academic programs at the undergraduate, graduate and professional levels in many disciplines. They are grouped administratively into the Colleges (Faculties) of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, Architecture, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Sciences, Engineering, Fine and Performing Arts, Journalism and Mass Communications, and Law. At the master's and doctoral level, most academic programs are administered by the Graduate College. The student body is comprised of approximately 19,000 undergraduates and 5,000 graduate and professional students. UNL is a member of the Committee on Institutional Cooperation, a consortium of world-class research institutions that have advanced their academic missions, generated unique opportunities for students and faculty, and served the common good by sharing expertise, leveraging campus resources, and collaborating on innovative programs. Located in the center of the United States, UNL provides a supportive environment for research, teaching, studying and outreach efforts. Lincoln, the capital of the state of Nebraska, is a progressive city of about 250,000 inhabitants with a rich array of intellectual and other opportunities for visiting academic staff and students.

YSU is an education university with a wider mandate with its core business of educating school teachers and other educational workforce while running non-education programs to educate scientists of different fields. Among the twelve universities converted in 1999 from the Institute of Teacher Education and Education Science in Indonesia, YSU has reached the highest status in terms of faculty achievements in research and students achievements in various fields. This university offers education programs at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels and academic programs at the undergraduate levels. These are grouped administratively into Faculties of Educational Sciences, Mathematics and Natural Sciences, Languages and Arts, Social Sciences, Technology, Sport Science, and Economics. At the master's and doctoral levels, all programs are administered by the School of Postgraduate Studies. It is at the Department level that both education and academic programs are offered. Currently, among its thirty-three Departments, eight Departments have offered academic programs, half of which are in the Faculty of Mathematics and Natural Sciences.

The student body is comprised of approximately 30,000 undergraduate and 2,000 graduate students. Located in the historic and cultural Special Territory of Yogyakarta in the context of Indonesia's multicultural and multilingual nation, YSU has determined to be a university that highly values local wisdom, the Indonesian unity within diversity, and international friendship. This university is developed based on the following foundational values: piety, autonomy, and intellectuality. As part of Indonesia's national education system, YSU has a strong commitment to the improvement of the quality of education in Indonesia, which is realized through the collaboration with a number of district governments in educating the best high school leavers in these districts to become prospective teachers in their own districts. This is a significant breakthrough because these districts have so far failed to recruit teachers from other areas due to their geographical locations. The Special Territory of Yogyakarta is special in everything—its history, its culture, its people and its government. Tolerance, openness, peace, friendship, and sincerity can immediately be sensed by everyone visiting Yogyakarta.
